ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In order to improve pattern recognition, various kinds of transformations are performed on an input object. One or more recognition algorithms are then performed on the input object transforms in addition to the input object itself. By performing recognition algorithms on an input object and its transforms, a more comprehensive set of recognition results are generated. A final recognition decision is based upon an input object and its transforms by aggregating the recognition results.